

Publisher's Note

Delivering a thoughtful and well-connected narrative to her first two books in the La Maison du Parc series, Kathleen Redmond's business acumen and life wisdom shines through yet again in Coaching in a Character Culture.

The depth and breadth of what Kathleen has offered in this book takes the meaning of a Character Culture to an entirely new level. Her respectful and diligent handling of difficult issues and real-life pressures for all in the workplace leaves you feeling that there is still hope amidst the prevailing negatives we hear about and are often bombarded with in the news.

When we stay the course of valuing and providing structured, ongoing support for those we work with and for, we see that visible shifts in self-awareness are more than possible. Furthermore, we see that meaningful professional and personal growth is a natural extension of this, especially for those ready to welcome their new knowledge and put it to great use.

What I have truly appreciated most about Kathleen as a person, and as a client and author of the La Maison du Parc series, is her consistency of and commitment to her messaging. I also love that she speaks to, and embodies, how the legacy of our work and life matters. Because it does.

Warmest congratulations to Kathleen. Thank you again for the opportunity to be a part of such substantive work.

Sheri Andrunyk

Publisher, Author, Speaker, Mentor

Insightful Communications (I C) Publishing

Committed to Quality Content, Design, and Platform

ICPublishing.ca / ICBookstore.ca